NO. 10

TIMELY HINTS.

The West Virginia Shorthorn Breeders Association will sell at auction at the Greenbrier Valley Fair Grounds on August 25, 10 A. M. 40 registered cattle—25 females and 15 bulls.

Farmers are slowly building up their herds of cattle and hogs, after the heavy reductions of 1920. This is indicated by the special livestock reporters of the Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates, United States Department of Agriculture.

The Steamship Moerdyke, sailing from Seattle to London, carried an experimental shipment of frozen strawberries in sugar. The experiment will be watched with interest, as it carries the possibility of developing a new market for surplus berries, aside from that furnished ordinarily by the canneries.

MORE HOME BUSINESS

The Fesenmeier Packing Co., of Huntington writes a letter, which is reproduced here for the benefit of the people of this State who raise live stock as well as all of the citizens in a general way. This company is one of the largest packing houses located in West Virginia and will use many thousand hogs, sheep and cattle.

Here is the letter:

Huntington, W. Va., June 29, 1921.

Mr. J. H. Stewart,
Commissioner of Agriculture,
Charleston, W. Va.

Dear Sir:—

In connection with the purchase of hogs, sheep and cattle, we are at this time buying considerably of the near by stock. We would appreciate your advising the stock raisers of West Virginia that it is our aim to buy all our stock if possible here. Any help that you can give us along this line will be appreciated.

Thanking you for past courtesies, we are,

Yours truly,

FESENMEIER PACKING CO.

P. R. Riddlemoser,
Vice Pres-Manager.

FAIRS INSTRUCTIVE AND ENTERTAINING

Mr. Bert H. Swartz, Secretary West Virginia Association of Fairs, and the West Virginia State Fair, makes some strong statements concerning fairs as follows:

Agriculture, in all its phases is the one great fundamental industry of the country, that feeds and clothes not only the people of our own nation, but of a large part of the world. Our various fairs, large and small, should have for their principal object the exhibition of agriculture and related products, live stock, poultry, grains, and the vegetables and fruits usually included under the general term, horticulture.

All fairs are, to greater or less degree, educational, but the educational features should be increasingly emphasized. Of course, it is not intended by this that there should be no fun and amusement provided, but these must be of clean, wholesome character, and made subordinate always, to the educational side of the fair. Attractions and amusements are absolutely essential to the success of any fair, for exhibits alone will not draw the visitors. Witness the great volume of specimens and agricultural lore stored in buildings of the agricultural departments; yet how very few of the people are drawn to view and study them or have any contact with the vast store, even though bulletins are issued setting forth facts concerning them, much of which fails to "get over" on account of the technical language used and the general distrust of what appears in books and papers. The average human being is more impressed with what he sees and hears than what he reads, hence visible demonstrations are more effective than written treatises.

 The commissioner of Agriculture of West Virginia, Hon. J. H. Stewart, is the first incumbent of this important office to realize and take advantage of the opportunities offered by the fairs of the state for the dissemination of valuable knowledge in agricultural lines. The Department to be of the greatest good to the greatest number, must come in intimate contact with the public. Its aims and achievements must be put before the people in an interesting, understandable manner. And where can this be so effectively done as at the fair, the logical point of contact between producer and consumer, buyer and seller, educator and student? What applies to the Department of Agriculture applies equally to all other farm organizations.
 If every fair throughout the state will constantly strive to increase and improve its educational features, and every other agricultural organization will lend the proper support and cooperation and take advantage of the opportunities offered by the fairs, there is no question but what the appropriation for state aid in the payment of premiums will prove to be one of the best investments ever made by the commonwealth, and one that will pay dividends a hundred-fold in the way of increased knowledge, interest, and production in agricultural and kindred pursuits.

WEST VIRGINIA CROP REPORT FOR JULY

The features of the July crop report for West Virginia, issued by the United States Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates, in co-operation with State Commissioner of Agriculture J. H. Stewart, are the prospects for an apple crop of only 949,000 bushels compared to 7,000,000 bushels last year; 86,000 bus. of peaches compared to 992,000 bus. last year; and the reduction of the State's tobacco acreage to 9,100 acres this season compared to 13,000 acres grown in 1920.

Oats now are estimated at 5,384,000 bus. compared to 5,400,000 bus. last year; rye about 175,000 bus. compared to 165,000 bus. last year; potatoes
 5,545,000 bus. compared to 6,840,000 bus. last year; and sweet potatoes
 247,000 bus. compared to 238,000 bus. last year.

This month's preliminary estimate of acreage and condition of corn indicates a crop of approximately 20,804,000 bus. compared to 22,100,000
 bus. last year; while the State's wheat crop is estimated at 4,084,000 bus.
 compared to 4,250,000 bus. last year.

This is the first report this season on corn and tobacco and as both crops have yet to make the critical part of their growth estimates of them are purely tentative. Estimates on all crops will be subject to revision upward or downward if found necessary during the season, depending on favorable or unfavorable weather and other conditions later.
 Apples are estimated at only 8 per cent of a full crop compared to 55 percent this time last year, and peaches are only 5 percent of a crop compared to 70 percent this time last year. The commercial apple
